CARTE POSTALE. POSTKARTE.

Donaldson's Hospital is the finest building of its kind in Scotland. It is a quadrangular structure, Tudor in style. The founder was a printer named James Donaldson, who in 1851 left £210,000 for the education and maintenance of 200 poor boys and girls, a large portion of whom are deaf and dumb. The building cost £100,000, and was erected after designs by Mr. W. H. Playfair.
